GENERAL INFORMATION

Which views on upbringing, care and education underpin youth policies and pedagogical practices in different countries? Which interventions are most suited and effective for improving the well-being of children, youth and young adults at home, at school at work or in care? How do we implement and monitor innovations?

The Mastertrack Youth 0-21, Society & Policy uses a multidisciplinary approach. You will study a broad range of issues related to the well-being of children and young people in an international context. During assignments and discussions, you will practice bridging the gap between policy, research and practice on complex issues and with various stakeholders. All students are encouraged to participate in an Academic Learning Community, in order to share knowledge and to achieve a broader and more global understanding. A research project – including an internship in a professional organisation – allows students to further develop their academic skills, resulting in a thesis.
