The University of Groningen is now institutional member of Cogitatio Press, an open access, academic publisher specialised in peer-reviewed journals. The journals are indexed in major indexing sites such as BASE, Cengage, DOAJ, EBSCO, Google Scholar, WorldCat.

The institutional membership is part of the library’s support for open access in the humanities and social sciences. It enables all researchers of the University of Groningen to publish free of charge in a journal published by Cogitatio. Every time a corresponding author from the University of Groningen submits an article for publication to a journal of Cogitatio they will immediately get informed that the article processing charges (APC) are already covered by this membership.

Other institutional members of Cogitatio Press include the University of Oslo and Wageningen University.

Cogitatio currently publishes three Journals:
