Lecture series | Dinosaurs

People love dinosaurs. Movies like Jurassic Park and The Land Before Time feed our imagination about the time these giant animals lived. Why are dinosaurs so appealing to us? How much do we really know about them? And is our image of these creatures too romanticised? In this series, Steve Brusatte, Anne Schulp and Ilja Nieuwland explore our dinomania, from the rise and fall of dinosaurs, to what remains of them today.

Location and ticket prices to be announced.

Tuesday 6, 20 October

Lecture series | It's About Time

What is time exactly? Is it possible to go back in time? And how about making time stop ticking? Why does time fly when you're immersed in a captivating novel, but when your train has a three minute delay, those minutes suddenly feel like hours? Humans have been debating the concept of time for centuries. In these series, physicist Eric Bergshoeff and neuroscientist Hedderik van Rijn talk about the concept of time.

Location and ticket prices to be announced.
