

ADDENDUM Teaching and Examination Rules FSE 2021-2022

Version 11 May 2021

Due to the Corona-crisis, the Faculty Board has decided to determine several temporary adjustments to the TER. Alterations of the TER during the academic year are only allowed if this is for the benefit of students. The Faculty Board believes these adjustments help students to proceed with their studies as conveniently as possible. This addendum contains the temporary provisions for the academic year 2021-2022.

BSc & MSc Teaching and Examination Rules 2021-2022

Proficiency of English language

Prospective students for the academic year 2021-2022, who have to prove their English language proficiency, may do so in the form of the TOEFL iBT Home Edition test. This test differs from the regular TOEFL iBT which is required to take place at a test centre. The accepted minimum scores for the Home Edition test are equal to those set for the regular TOEFL iBT test.

Assessment method

The method of assessment is prescribed in Ocasys. Apart from the location (at home, instead of in the university buildings) the assessment methods for most courses will not be altered. For some courses alterations in the assessment methods will be made, e.g. an assignment or an oral exam instead of a practical or a written exam. This will be part of the assessment plan for 2021-2022.

MSc Teaching and Examination Rules 2021-2022

'Bachelor before Master'-rule

For the academic year 2021-2022, the Faculty Board has decided to apply the same transition arrangement as for 2020-2021. Students with a maximum deficiency of 15 ECTS worth of course units necessary for admission (from the post-propaedeutic phase) may enrol in a Master's degree programme. This decision also applies to admission to selective Master's degree programmes and for students who are currently enrolled in a pre-Master's programme instead of a regular Bachelor's programme. Master's programmes may set additional requirements for admission. These (renewed) additional requirements will be posted on the website in due time.

A precondition for the use of the transition arrangement is that students make a realistic plan with their academic advisor for the academic year of 2021-2022. If students have not finished their Bachelor's degree before 31 August 2022, they can not re-register for a Master's degree programme from 1 September 2022 onwards and will be required to first complete their Bachelor's degree programme. Any study results obtained for the Master's degree programme will remain valid.