GENERAL INFORMATION

How can we make schools a safe place for sexual minority youth? What kinds of support do children in foster care need? Can children and young people participate in policy development about healthy lifestyles? And how can we improve the interventions that tackle these urgent youth issues?

Do you want to be someone who makes a difference in the lives of young people? In the mastertrack Youth⁰⁻²¹, Society & Policy you will learn how to promote healthy lifestyles of children, and you will study how youth are impacted by unemployment and discrimination. Also, you will study the context of child protection, and learn more about youth who are refugees. For all of these topics, we consider how youth can participate in the research process. Connecting practice and policy with state-of-the-art research allows you to develop a deep understanding of problems and possible solutions for the well-being of minority youth in vulnerable contexts. The international classroom supports a lively discussion and the exchange of perspectives from around the world.
