APPENDIX 1 – Assessment Plan and Matrix of Learning Outcomes (separate document)

APPENDIX 2 – Schematic Overview of Changes in the BA History program

SECTION 1 GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 1.1 – Applicability of the OER

These Regulations comprise two parts – Part A and Part B. This degree programme-specific Part B supplements Part A, which contains general stipulations for the teaching and examinations of the Bachelor's degree programmes taught at the Faculty of Arts, hereinafter referred to as the Faculty. Part B contains degree programme-specific provisions which apply to the degree programme in History.

SECTION 2 QUALIFICATIONS

Article 2.1 – Admission to the programme with profile requirement

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 2.1. of Part A of these Teaching and Examination Regulations, the following supplementary requirements apply to this degree programme: N/A.

Article 2.2 – Educational deficiencies

1. Deficiencies in educational qualifications in the subjects listed below may be compensated for by passing the relevant examinations to the satisfaction of the Admissions Board at the level of: N/A
2. Under certain circumstances, the Admissions Board can request a university lecturer in the relevant subject to arrange one or more tests.

Article 2.3 – Language requirement for foreign certificates

In addition to Article 2.3 of Part A of this OER, in terms of the language requirements for this programme:

1. Students who have been admitted to a degree programme on the basis of a foreign certificate or degree may be required by the Admissions Board – before registration – to pass a Dutch language test if the student is admitted to the regular track, to be administered by an agency stipulated by the Board.
2. The Dutch language proficiency requirement (for the regular track) will in any event be met by passing the State Examination in Dutch as a Second Language (NT2-II).

Article 2.4 – Starting date

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 2.7 of Part A, the following additional requirement applies to this degree programme:

Students who have previously been enrolled in this degree programme or who wish to start in a higher year may apply to the Admissions Board for permission to start on a date other than 1 September. The Admissions Board will grant permission for an alternative starting date if the specific course units that the student in question wishes to follow start on this date and if the student has satisfied the entry requirements for these course units.

Article 3.1 – Learning outcomes of the degree programme

Description of the Bachelor's level in accordance with the Dublin descriptors	Learning outcomes (of both the regular and international tracks)
1. Knowledge and understanding: Graduates have demonstrated knowledge and understanding in a field of study that builds upon and exceeds their secondary education, and is typically at a level that, whilst supported by advanced textbooks, includes some aspects that will be informed by knowledge of the forefront of their field of study.	Bachelor's graduates in History must demonstrate: 1. a broad and well-balanced knowledge and understanding of the main points in the political, cultural, economic and social aspects of all historical periods, from Antiquity down to the present day 2. knowledge and understanding of the main current and historiographical developments in historical sciences with regard to themes, theory and methodology 3. knowledge and understanding of the local, national, regional, supranational and international/global complexity, diversity and coherence, also in the conceptualization of time and space, in the past and the relationship between these factors and contemporary developments 4. knowledge, understanding and/or skills gained in a Faculty or University Minor for the purpose of following a further degree programme or starting a societal career after obtaining the Bachelor's degree in History 5. knowledge of one or two overarching themes within the humanities, and can explain the consequences of these themes for the knowledge domain of History.
2. Applying knowledge and understanding: Graduates are able to apply their knowledge and understanding in a manner that indicates a professional approach to their job or profession, and have competences typically demonstrated through devising and sustaining arguments and solving problems within their field of study.	6. the ability to gather, select and organize literature and source material independently, efficiently and effectively, making use of the relevant bibliographical and IT skills 7. the ability to formulate clear, relevant and empirically testable and/or answerable research questions taking into account the existing historiography (status quaestionis or scholarly consensus) 8. the ability to critically analyse historical-scientific texts and textual, visual, material, audiovisual and quantitative sources 9. the ability to apply historical and interdisciplinary research methods and theories in a historiographical context to arrive at a well-founded analysis of historical issues 10. the ability to write, present and defend a research report using the correct terminology with constant attention to style and argumentation, in line with the requirements of the historical sciences 11. the ability to apply the historical knowledge and skills that are useful in a broad range of academic professions, whereby they must: - demonstrate personal responsibility and self-discipline - demonstrate problem-solving skills - be able to think and work to deadlines

	- be able to collaborate, also in cooperation with peers and colleagues with different cultural backgrounds - be able to effectively use basic digital skills
3. Forming judgements: Graduates have the ability to gather and interpret relevant data (usually within their field of study) to make judgements that include reflection on relevant social, academic or ethical issues.	12. the ability to reflect on the contextual relevance of their own social and academic judgements and historical interpretations, as well as those of others 13. the ability to assess the temporary and complex nature of academic knowledge and research on its merits 14. the ability to exchange views with colleagues based on their own judgement in a critical and effective way 15. the ability to report well-argued conclusions based on the results of a small to medium-sized historical research project in papers and in a Bachelor's thesis in line with the conventions of the historical sciences
4. Communication: Graduates are able to communicate information, ideas, problems and solutions to both specialist and non-specialist audiences.	16. the ability to communicate reliably, accurately and with correct language use in Dutch or English, orally and in writing, on results within historical science for an audience consisting of specialists and laymen 17. the ability to actively participate in social and academic discussions while respecting the views and feelings of others
5. Learning skills Graduates have those learning skills that are necessary for students to continue to undertake further study with a high degree of autonomy.	18. the ability to identify their own learning needs with regard to current and new topics and to initiate a learning process, using relevant research and the latest developments in the field of historical sciences.

See Appendix 1 for the Matrix of realized learning outcomes / course units in the degree programme.

Article 3.2 – Language of instruction

1. The regular track of the degree programme is mainly taught in Dutch; the international track of the degree programme is taught in English.
2. Notwithstanding Article 3.2.1, course units in the regular track of the degree programme may be taught in English in line with the University of Groningen Code of Conduct: Languages Used in Teaching and Examinations.
3. The thesis/final assessment of the regular track must be written in Dutch or English; the thesis/final assessment of the international track must be written in English.

Article 3.3 – Contact hours

1. The first year of the degree programme comprises a minimum of 403 contact hours a year (full-time variant). Part-time students in principle follow the same lectures as full-time students.
2. The second and third years of the degree programme comprises a minimum of 291 contact hours a year (full-time variant).
