Article 5.1 – Admission assessment: times

Admission to and (re-)registration in the Master's degree programme Legal Research is only possible per 1 September. Candidates must apply before 1 April (English-taught track) or 1 May (Dutch-taught track).

Article 5.2 – Admissibility, selection and admission to the programme

1. The student who has gone through the admission and selection procedure as referred to in Articles 5.3 and 5.4 and has been deemed admissible and selected by the Admissions Board shall be admitted to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master).
2. In order to be admitted to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master), admissibility to the programme is first determined in accordance with Article 5.3. If admissibility is determined, with or without conditions, the Admissions Board shall assess, based on the selection requirements of the programme in accordance with Article 5.4, whether a student is selected for the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master). If both assessments are positive, a student is admitted to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master).

Article 5.3 – Qualifications and admissibility to the programme

1. Holders of a Bachelor's degree in Law from a research university are admissible to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master).
2. A candidate who has the prospect of obtaining a Bachelor's degree from a research university before the actual commencement of the degree programme may apply to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master). In addition to successful selection, the condition for actual admission is that this Bachelor's degree programme must have been completed by the time the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master) starts.
3. The Admissions Board may, under certain conditions, admit a candidate who does not hold a Bachelor's degree in Law from a research university to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master). One of the conditions may be that the candidate has successfully completed a preparatory programme.

Article 5.4 – Selection criteria

1. Those who are admissible to the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master) must go through a selection procedure.
2. The selection is made on the basis of the following criteria:
 - demonstrable sufficient knowledge of the English language;

- possession of sufficient knowledge, insight and skills for the programme to be a legal researcher;
- talent for pursuing the degree programme.

Article 5.5 – Admissions procedure

1. A student can request admission by submitting the following documents:
 - a completed application form;
 - a curriculum vitae;
 - an overview of the study results obtained up to that point in their current Bachelor's degree programme and/or of any other programme at a research university;
 - a letter in which the student explains why the student wants to participate in this degree programme, based on their own expectations, interests and ambitions;
 - (when requested) written results of previously conducted research, e.g., academic articles;
 - (when requested) other documents which, according to the student, could contribute to a proper image of their suitability for participation in the programme.
2. The Admissions Board accepts references of experts in the field who attest in written form and provide the Admissions Board with a useful and reliable picture of the suitability of the student with regard to participation in the Master's degree programme in Legal Research (Research Master).
3. The Admissions Board determines, based on the submitted written material, if a student will be invited for an interview with the Admissions Board. If students are not invited for an interview, they will be informed by the Admissions Board, accompanied by a statement of reasons. The Admissions Board can request additional written material (thesis, paper, assignment).
4. For students living abroad, the admissions interview can be preceded by a telephone conversation with one of the members of the Admissions Board. This conversation serves as an advice to the student about the usefulness of travelling to Groningen for the admissions interview.
5. The admission decision will be sent to students by the 1st of July at the latest. A rejection will be accompanied by a statement of reasons.
