Although it is a stimulating and motivating experience, completing a PhD takes a lot of effort, time and energies. There are therefore several people I would like to thank for helping me going through this process.

First of all, I would like to thank my supervisors, Eline and Amina, without their invaluable guidance this thesis would surely have not been the same. Thanks for your time, energies, enthusiasm and advices, for teaching me to be independent in my research, for helping me develop my critical spirit, and also simply for being such good supervisors. It has been a great pleasure for me to collaborate with you, thanks for everything! I would also like to thank the other members of the DART team for the contribution they gave to this thesis and for being such nice collaborators. In particular I would like to acknowledge those collaborators I had the pleasure to interact more closely with: Mike, thanks for being generous of your broad knowledge, for always helping me when I needed it, and for sharing the recipe of your delicious pecan pie; Vanessa, thanks for always being so accurate and clear; Pascale, I enjoy your sense of humour and strong critical spirit. I would also like to acknowledge the reading committee of this thesis for the careful reading of the manuscript and for the insightful comments.

My experience as a PhD student at the Kapteyn Astronomical Institute would not have been so pleasant without the combined, daily efforts of all the people of the institute. Thanks to the scientific staff for making our institute highly regarded, and for being keen to share your knowledge with the PhD students. Thanks to the computer group, in particular to Wim, always funny and ready to give me a hand with all my computer problems. Thanks to the secretaries, Jackie, Hennie, Gineke, for being so helpful with bureaucratic matters and more.

A special thank to my office mates, Jelte and Rense for the first two years, and Attila and Boris in the last period. Jelte and Rense, it was a real pleasure to share the office with you guys. I really enjoyed the nice atmosphere and the long breaks after lunch with half the institute drinking coffee in our office; thanks also for all your help translating tons of bureaucratic letters for me and for the thesis-related issues. Attila and Boris, thanks for creating a nice and quiet environment in the office in the last period of my PhD. Attila, thanks a lot for translating my summary into Dutch, I owe you one; Boris, thanks for introducing music at the happy hours, it was definitely a good idea.

Bruno, you were a funny and easygoing housemate. Thanks for teaching me everything I needed to know about Québec, starting from the various uses of maple sirup (Sortilege is the best!), delighting me with Québécois music and carefully instructing me about the importance of the separatist politics in Québec. Thanks for all the parties, movie nights and nice dinners! And, although you have been a good student to my cooking lessons, I think there is still some room for improvement... indeed it would not be a bad idea to put eggs in your carbonara and less celery in your pasta alla Bruno! Thanks also for not getting “traumatised” that night when we heard noises outside the house and you accidentally...

Jelte, thanks for always being ready for “just a small aperitif before we go to the gym” which would unavoidably end up in totally forgetting about the gym. Thanks for all our conversations, the nights out and the trips... our accidental detour to Pescara was memorable! Ole, thanks for always being so cheerful and for all our nice conversations, for your pancakes and for our trips outside Groningen. Also, thanks for letting me practise my haircutting skills on you and I swear I did not mean to give you a girl haircut! Filippo, it was fun to elaborate strategies with you for “the game”, I was a reasonably good player, wasn’t I?

Mirjam, our girls nights were really good, I hope we’ll have more of those. That night we ended up locked in Pakhuis until 7a.m. was amazing. Thanks also for taking care of me when I was feeling a bit down and when I was ill, I appreciated that. And don’t think I will forget about the traditional yearly appointment with your home-made erwetenssoep, I’ll make sure to be in Groningen at that time! Paolo, thanks for always being so sharp in arriving exactly one hour late, for all the dinners, the interesting conversations, the bottarga and the Kubrick movie sessions. When are we watching Doctor Strangelove again? Peter, thanks for introducing me to Storm, I had a lot of fun there, and for providing some unexpected musical entertainment during lunch breaks. Martin, thanks for broadening my mind and showing me that, although inappropriate and wrong, it is physically possible to combine lasagna with chicken... I did not think that could be true! Emanuele, thanks for being such a nice person and I wish we could have more barbecues at your place. Facundo, Antonela, Thomas, Juan-Pablo, Matías, thanks for being such an easygoing and fun people; thanks to the argentinian community at Kapteyn for introducing mate during breaks; thanks also to all the other PhD students, postdocs and students to make the institute a nice place where to be. Finally, it must be said that no matter how pleasant the institute could be, it is also very good to have a life outside...therefore thanks to all the pubs, restaurants, cinemas in Groningen which guarantee a very lively night life. At this respect, I would also like to thank my favourite bar-tender, who made sure I would never pay for my drinks for over a year: Mark, why did you leave the Pakhuis? please come back!

Alvaro, you have contributed a lot to my PhD life. Thanks for being such a nice person, always understanding and mature, and for giving good advices. Thanks for being easygoing and not always taking me too seriously! Thanks also for all our trips together (including the ones on the backfiets), nice dinners with enjoyable chats and for your delicious empanadas!

Eliana, grazie per le nostre chiacchierate, sempre dirette a ció che per noi conta veramente, e grazie per far sí che io mi senta sempre a casa durante le mie visite a Bologna.

Infine, un ringraziamento speciale va ai miei genitori ed a mia sorella. Grazie per essere sempre presenti e per essere sempre pronti ad ascoltarmi. Il vostro sostegno è per me veramente prezioso.
