Acknowledgments

I would like to take an opportunity to thank many people without help and inspiration of whom this thesis would not be possible.

First of all, I would like to thank my supervisor Dr. Ignacio Melian-Cabrera for the opportunity to do my PhD at the University of Groningen. It was one of my dreams to become a PhD and it became true because you chose me for this project. I still remember this day somewhere in the middle of September 2009 when I got a call from you, and this call changed my life... I would like to thank you for all the knowledge in the field of catalysis, material science, and characterization that you shared with me. Thank you for your support and directions in this PhD project.

I am thankful to my promotor Professor Hero Jan Heeres for the opportunity to be a part of the group, your support, and my special thanks for your prompt responses and corrections at the final stage before the defense.

Special thanks go to my reading committee, Professor E.J.M. Hensen, Professor A.A. Broekhuis, and Professor K. Seshan for your precious time to read my manuscripts and your suggestions.

I acknowledge the Dutch Technology Foundation STW, which is the applied science division of NWO, and the Technology Program of the Ministry of Economic Affairs, Agriculture and Innovation (Green and Smart Process Technologies, GSPT) for the financial support.

I am grateful to our project partners Professor Freek Kapteijn, Dr. Michiel Makkee from Technical University of Delft and Dr. Barbara Kimmich from CBI & Lummus Technology. I thank Professor Kapteijn and Dr. Makkee for their comments and contribution to publications, and I thank Dr. Kimmich and Dr. Makkee for interesting, fruitful, and sometimes WebEx monthly meetings.

Separately, I would like to acknowledge Christian Nederlof for introduction to the 6-flow reactor use, catalytic testing method, and all catalytic tests which he made in the first half of my PhD. Other half of the project I was glad to communicate with Harrie Jansma. Thank you, Harrie, for the catalytic tests. Cooperation with you guys gave me a chance to get to know the process of catalyst testing deeper.

Talking about Delft University of Technology, I would like to acknowledge Ing. Bart van der Linde for teaching me to use the py-FTIR set-up, helping with acidity measurements and providing useful literature about it. I have to say that you are one of the best and talented technicians, and I am impressed with how you can do your job at the high level and even above that.

I gratefully acknowledge several technical people from the University of Groningen for catalysts characterizations. I thank Dr. Hjalmar Permentier for the MALDI-TOF analyses, Ing. Hans van der Velde for CHN and ICP analyses, Ing. Gert ten Brink for SEM and TEM measurements, Prof. W. Browne for many Raman measurements, and Ing. Jacob Baas for the introduction to XRD and your always good mood and smiles.

I can not forget a big impact of my students Hesamoddin Talebi and Sebastiaan Meijer to my PhD thesis. Hesam, thank you for your hard work on hybrid topic, patience (when catalysts could not be measured), smiles, and support. Sebastiaan, thank you for your deep thinking on the phosphorous-modified supports topic, hard work, calm attitude, and support. I hope that one day we can publish these results in journals.

Also I wish to express my gratitude to Prof. Vladislav Sadykov and my advisor Dr. Svetlana Pavlova back in Russia, who inspired me to do a PhD and showed me how wonderful the catalysis world is.

My work at the University of Groningen was challenging, but it was also interesting, inspiring, and happy, thanks to my dear colleagues. Here I would like to acknowledge them too.

I am heartily thankful to the girls from our subgroup. Maria, you are the first from three of you, whom I met already during my interview. I appreciate all your help in the lab, support, our conversations, and your smiles which always help to feel better. Lidia, I am thankful for your help in the lab, advices, and great time in Mexico which you spent with me when I needed a support. Zheng, you are one of the most positive people I know. You have the ability to inspire and motivate people, and I would like to thank you for cheering me up in the moments when I was losing my motivation. I will never forget how we worked, talked, laughed and cried together. Thank you for being an important part of my PhD life.

My special thanks to the best guys from the department, my officemates. Bilal, I deeply thank you for our conversations about work, life and religions, and your support. Diego, I am thankful for all your help, smiles, talks, and being the object when I was angry and threw tape, pen or whatever else in you. Arjan, thanks for your support, noise, and creative mess in the office. Frank, we did not spend much time in one office, but thanks for your friendliness and kindness. Thanks to all of you. You can not imagine how many times you could find the right words to support me.

I am thankful to all colleagues, stuff members, and students with whom I had a chance to work at Chemical Engineering department of the University of Groningen:

Tim Meinds, María González, Gacia Boyadjian, Tomas Costa, Lucas Mevius, Erik Riemsma.

My thanks to staff members, Marya de Jonge, Erwin Wilbers, Marcel de Vries, and Anne Appeldoorn for practical and administrative support. Big thanks for labuitjes, hardlopen, barbeque, and Christmas dinners which you organized. Thanks to Alphons Navest for all paper work which you did for me.

My gratitude to many other people from the University of Groningen and outside of it, with whom I had a chance to meet and had a good time on borrels, dances, courses or any other activities. Jesús Rosales Carreón, Raquel Travieso Puente, Marta, Luca Bignardi, Johanne Penafiel, Héctor García de Marina Peinado, Dunstano Del Puerto Flores, Sara Ongay, Andreia de Almeida, Tiago Fierra, Robert Rocos, Yana Antonenko, Rob Dwars, Giovana Luz Quintana Guevara, Justyna Łaba, Stefano Catarci, Diego Pesce, Valentín Gómez, Esther Paniagua Acedo, Teresa Alcacio, Lucy Ramos, (last three persons especially acknowledged for teaching me Spanish), thanks to you all. And my (sadly posthumous) gratitude to docent Joke de Boer for giving me interest in the Dutch language and teaching me it.

My heartfelt thanks to my friend, housemate, colleague, and wonderful person Anna Piskun. Thank you for your support, help, motivation and inspiration, ability to listen, and give valuable advices. It was my pleasure to meet you long time ago in Novosibirsk, and become friends here. Other special thanks go to my friend, colleague, and dancer Patrizio Raffa. Thank you for your positive and smiling attitude, support, help, conversations, and our salsa dances. I wish I had at least part of your kindness. To both of you, thank you to be my paranimphs. I appreciate it a lot.

I am happy, that in these last years I met many good friends. Ivan Vujačić, thank you for support, I know that I always can rely on you. Soukaina Dafir, thanks for your endless support and all the fun we had together. Thanks to Mina Zabeljan for your help and optimism, this always makes me smile. My enormous thanks to Elena Misterman for your true friendship, fun, optimism, help, and support in all happy and sad situations. Esteban Araya Hermosilla, you are like a brother to me, and I always dreamt of having one, thank you. My thanks to Maurizio Muñoz-Arias for your support, help, our dances, conversations, and many other things.

My life during the PhD study could not be full without my Russian culture, language, and Russian-speaking friends. I am grateful to all my Russian-speaking friends and fellows. Vlad Pavelev, Oleksander Shverts, Oleksiy Nesterov, Aleksey Polyakov, Aleksandra Yarkova, Leysja Yusupova, Anna Kupianskaya, Natalia Martynchenko, Andrey Khudchenko, Iulia Vos, Sardar Boobaa, Almis Serbenta, thank you all for our parties, games, and fun together. When I am with you, guys, I always laugh and smile.

My special thanks to my closest Russian friends. Marina Spiridonova and Alexander Semenov, I am so happy that I met you in Groningen almost immediately after my arrival. You went with me through everything. I am thankful for your endless support, hospitality, help, and true friendship. Maria Remerova and Dimitriy
Remerov, I can not count all words which I would like to say to you. Thank you, for your infinite help, support, and your presence at the most important moments of my life. I never even dreamt to have friends like you. Alina Kondrachuk, thank you for your understanding, conversations, and gym activities together. Elena Gagarina, thanks for your understanding, support, and involvement. Svetlana Dubinkina and Denis Melnikov, thank you for your support, advices, and hospitality in Brussels.

My sincere thanks to the Russian Orthodox Church in Groningen, especially to Father Onufriy and Father Evseviy. There I could always come in the good and bad moments of my life, and learn how to be patient, kind, and how to forgive.

My enormous gratitude to my dancing schools, where I could always forget all problems, bad mood, pain, and many other things. I could just dance and be happy. Thanks to The Underground Danceclass Company (TUDC), all instructors and members of this school for funny and interesting dance classes. Special thanks to my dance team Rhythm Nation, especially to our instructor Mick Bleekrode. It was great time to train together with you, guys. My endless thanks to Salsa Juan Carlos dance school, personally to Juan Carlos Gonzalez and Feline Brinkgreve, for great and highly professional dance lessons, passion in your work and energy which you always share with people. Thank you for your attention to each of your students, it really means a lot. For sure, I will never forget my every week “wonsdagavond vrij dansen”. Thanks to El Bachatero dance school, especially to Gorkis Rivas and Cindy Woo, for the best and productive classes of Dominican bachata. You made my Sundays not lazy, but wonderful. All of you indirectly had a positive impact to my research and this book by providing me with energy.

My last but not least, and most sincere gratitude goes to my family. I thank my grandmother Seraphima Leontovich, my father Igor Zarubin, and my mother Liudmila Zarubina for their help, right words, and endless support during my ups and downs. Special thanks to my mother, who always loves me with all her heart, supports me in all my decisions and choices, is proud of my achievements, and never stops believing in me. Я люблю тебя, мама.

My posthumous gratitude to my other grandmother Rosa, who helped me to become the individual I am. I will never forget you; you are always in my heart...

Grateful to God for everything.

Sincerely yours,

Valeriya Zarubina
