This thesis stands for my life in Holland. During our six years in Groningen, work on the PhD has greatly contributed to a fulfilled time in the Netherlands.

Moving through different parts of the world and still pursuing a career and raising children at the same time has been quite challenging at times. Nevertheless, the work at the group of rational drug use in the Department of Clinical Pharmacology of the University Medical Centre Groningen made both possible: it greatly promoted my professional and scientific development while at the same time left the freedom to pursue family life.

After having gained my first research experience in basic medical research in neuro-endocrinology for my German medical doctoral thesis, I was first exposed to health care research almost a decade later when evaluating effects of external quality assurance on hospital management in Hamburg under the supervision of Prof. Alf Trojan. The next step was triggered through the personal experience of living abroad, in the USA, which involved seeing the different health care systems with outsider’s eyes. I was fortunate enough that Prof. Ted Marmor of the Yale School of Management accepted me as his research assistant for his comparative health care research work. Ted, I am most grateful for the hours I could spend with you, discussing theoretical models of policy learning and analyzing health care systems with a totally different approach than I was used to so far. You also exposed me to inspiring seminars and personalities in the field. I learned immensely in this most inspiring period and without this experience I might have not insisted on continuing this comparative part of research after our move to the Netherlands. Working with you was simply fun!

Through your initiative I could link up with Prof. Rudolf Klein (London School of Economics) to work on my first comparative study: international differences in the financing of life-style drugs such as Viagra. Rudolf, it was an honour and a pleasure to work with you! Despite your longstanding and internationally recognized experience in the field I always felt as an accepted discussant. You were open for any question and got never tired of giving continuous advice also after my completion of the study. I also highly appreciated – and enjoyed - your visits to Holland to make life discussions on my PhD project possible.

Also in Ted’s office I met Prof. Kieke Okma, then still policy advisor at the Dutch Ministry of Health, who tirelessly encouraged me to continue my research efforts in the Netherlands.
Kieke, finally it was you who made the link to the group of Prof. Floor Haaijer-Ruskamp in Groningen. It was also you - together with Ted - who repeatedly invited me to discussions in the Dutch Ministry of Health, raising the awareness to the gap between research and the needs of policy making. It was great having you and Ted as advisors and supporters and even as guests at our home in Groningen twice!

(I hope you will not be discouraged by the 700 km and also make your way to the traditional German University town of Tübingen. Your inspirational views would be well appreciated here.)

And then of course and most importantly I want to thank my first promotor, Prof. Floor Haaijer-Ruskamp, who throughout the whole period in Groningen supported my scientific development. Floor, you were a great advisor – not only in research questions! I would like to thank you for the countless hours of constructive and fruitful discussions, your admirable patience and the freedom you gave me to pursue our goal doing it my way. You were the continuous instructor to all practical and theoretical issues, the initiator of Dutch connections, in one word: you were the key to success for my Groningen experience. You always had an open ear and some extra minutes for any question! And I guess, Floor, that meanwhile you even accept bike helmets (at least for Germans...).

Of course I also want to thank Prof. Wiek van Gilst, my second promotor. Wiek, it was a pleasure to work with you. You were the perfect antipode: not only did you contribute the cardiological-clinical expertise, but your rational view on health care research issues quite often helped to clarify my thinking in relevant questions. Both of you, Floor and Wiek, I would like to thank for the encouragement to present my results in both worlds: the cardiology world as well as the health care research arena.

Nic Veeger, clinical epidemiologist of the TCC, I would especially like to thank for his structural input in all IMPROVEMENT analyses. Nic, only your experience in both parts, with cardiological issues as well as your methodological competence enabled a sensible analysis of the data. Without you, that project would have never been possible!

For our analysis of health care elements, the expertise of Dr. Diana Delnoij of the NIVEL in Utrecht helped to structure the study design. Diana, you also gave indispensable advice on the interpretation of the multilevel analysis results, which was performed splendidly by Peter Spreeuwenberg from the NIVEL.
During my first year in Groningen a comment to our Viagra paper got me in touch with Dr. Andrew Oxman, then director of the Norwegian Knowledge Centre for the Health Services and editor of Cochrane’s Effective Practice Organisation Collaboration (EPOC). He invited me to be a reviewer on the drug policy review, which from then on accompanied my PhD work. Through this work I could refine my knowledge in epidemiological study designs and critical analysis of literature. Working with this international team, especially with my co-reviewer Astrid Tobe-Dahlgren and the core team of Morten Aaserud in Oslo as well as Jan-Peter Kösters in Kopenhagen was always fun. Special thanks of course also to our methodological co-authors, Craig Ramsay from Aberdeen and Asa Vernby from Stockholm. Despite the geographical distance work was most efficient and always enjoyable. Our meetings twice a year, often in Oslo were one of the highlights of my work! Astrid, shopping with you in Ottawa, Utrecht and Oslo was big fun! Andy, the possibility to discuss our approach and results with international policy-makers in Ottawa as well as our numerous internal discussions contributed remarkably to my professional development.

The work for this review could only be completed through the financial support of the Dutch College voor Zorgverzekeraars. My special thanks goes to Mrs. Yolande Waterreus from the CVZ and Prof. Dick de Zeeuw, head of our department in Groningen, who made that support and its integration within the university structure possible.

In Groningen daily life of course was mostly influenced through my dear colleagues in the work group of drug utilization studies: Jacoba, who pretty much from the very beginning to being my ‘paranimf’ in the end shared not only my room but also ups and downs. Jacoba, your answers especially to methodological questions were always precious. Also Larissa, you were a big help in epidemiological and research questions. Plus, with both of you we discussed many questions relevant to life in Holland and time was never boring in our room combining Dutch, Armenian and German cultures and different professional backgrounds. Thanks for that! But also with the other group members it was always a pleasure to work with: Peter (who now also supports me with being the local paranimf), Petra, Anoushka, Jasperine, Amany, I enjoyed the relaxed and friendly atmosphere and very diverse discussions at lunchtime. And of course Ellen la Bastide and the entire secretariat, you were always supportive of my needs. I definitely don’t want to forget Wessel Sloof, who tirelessly supported me in my ignorance of computer and network related problems, even after I moved you were still patient enough to make another backup!
The entire group of the department of clinical pharmacology, the groups of social pharmacy and the COACH group I would like to thank for the constructive and critical discussions during our regular research meetings.

Last but most importantly I want to thank my family: first of all Ekkehard, who not only took over my part to run the family whenever I had to be away despite his own demanding professional activities, but he also never got tired of encouraging my efforts. Ekkehard, I would never be where I am without you! Also both our parents I would like to thank: without your boundless support on both sides even if it involved travelling 700km I would have been lost! Johannes and Julius, you are the joy of my life, you give me the energy to go on and always give my best! I must be very fortunate to have such a wonderful family.
