Intergenerational proximity, residential relocations and the well-being of older people
van der Pers, Marieke

IMPORTANT NOTE: You are advised to consult the publisher's version (publisher's PDF) if you wish to cite from it. Please check the document version below.

Document Version
Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Publication date:
2016

Link to publication in University of Groningen/UMCG research database

Citation for published version (APA):

Copyright
Other than for strictly personal use, it is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Take-down policy
If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

Downloaded from the University of Groningen/UMCG research database (Pure): http://www.rug.nl/research/portal. For technical reasons the number of authors shown on this cover page is limited to 10 maximum.
Acknowledgements
The work described in this thesis would not have been possible without the contributions, be it professional and/or social, of colleagues, friends, and family. I definitely need some space to thank everyone involved.

First of all, I would like to thank my promotors. Claartje, initially you were not my promotor, but you moved from Amsterdam to Groningen at exactly the right moment. I was uncertain about my research plans concerning reproductive health of refugees and I was given the opportunity to change subject. Intergenerational proximity, residential moves and older people fitted your work and interests in a perfect way! Although it took some time to get to know each other, from the first moment I was very pleased about your attitude and approach as a researcher! You are very concise, thorough and clear in your ideas and attitude. As I have the habit of wanting to cover too many issues at once, and also wait too long to discuss results and progress, you taught me to focus and to think about obstacles and solutions together. Unfortunately, I did not manage to finish within my contract, and I realize that from time to time you must have been worried about whether I would be able to bring my PhD research to completion. I am very grateful for your continuous optimism and support, both scientifically and socially.

Eva, we met in Rostock in 2005, at the European Doctoral School of Demography. We became friends and after some years you moved to Groningen for a postdoc position at the PRC. In this position you were the co-author of one article. While discussing about you being the co-author for a second article together we realized that your expertise fitted the whole PhD project very well and from that moment I was your first PhD student! Thank you for the important part you played in my research project. Not only were you important in keeping me motivated, you also have influence the direction of my PhD research and taught me to stick to decisions that were made. I truly hope that you, Hauke and Isa will continue to live in Groningen for many more years.

Inge, you have been very important for this work and my personal development. You were the one who invited me to do a PhD project on reproductive health of refugees. Unfortunately, I was not able to continue on this topic, but you provided me with the time needed to work on myself and to change topic completely. I very appreciate much your openness, honesty and support. Without you being involved in this process I would certainly not have been able to complete this thesis.

The members of the reading committee, Prof. Marjolein Broese van Groenou, Prof. Aat Liefbroer and Prof. Dirk Strijker, are greatly acknowledged for approving the manuscript. In addition, I would like to thank Prof. Nardi Steverink (also as co-author) and Dr. Louise Meijering for being part of the opposition.

Dear Anu, thank you for being my paranymph. Having you around always gave me joy and I have enjoyed our walks, your sense of humor and coffees without cake so much. Hang on, very soon it will be your time to defend your PhD project as well! We will definitely eat cake that day! Dear Billie, thank you for being my other paranymph. Our personalities are very similar and I have enjoyed our time together at the PRC. I am very grateful that we became close friends and that we could share our worries about how to combine work and parenthood while at the same time finishing a PhD project. I admire your attitude to take risks and follow your heart.

Over the years I have met many inspiring and kind people in and around the faculty. With some of them I became close friends. Karen, we met when I was a Master student. Thinking of the PRC somehow reminds me of you. I took over some of your responsibilities when you left for Sweden. I really appreciate your character and your working attitude. Biswamitra, you were my first non-Dutch friend. I introduced you to Groningen and Dutch habits, you taught me to appreciate different cultural habits, rules and food. Fanny, Louise and Ajay, you were the other PRC members being around in 2008. In 2016 you are all still there and working hard. You are great examples of very social and dedicated researchers. To my special Balkan office mates, Erka and Vera: thank you for all our conversations about the struggles in life as a PhD student!

I have met too many other nice and inspiring persons at PRC. In alphabetic order: Aagje, Alessandra, Betty, Christine, Daniel, Emmy, Frans, Hans, Hinke, Leo, Liesbeth, Linden, Mackallen, Mary, Meredith, Mirjam, Myriam, Ori, Rizwan, Sanne, Silvia, Sepideh. Thank you all for being such pleasant colleagues! Of course this also holds for all other colleagues at the FRW. Stiny, Mirjam, Alida, Lonneke, Imre and Eliza, thanks for all your support.

Special thanks goes to my new employers at the Teacher Education department. Michelle, Klaas and Wim, without your approval to work on my thesis for some time in the summer of 2015 it would have taken many more months to complete it. You are great researchers and I very much enjoy working with you. Jolien and Annemiek, sharing the office with young women who try to be good mothers and good researchers at the same time helps me very much to appreciate both roles.

Snoopies, during (and especially after) our great demographic experience in Rostock you have been very meaningful to me. I hope we will make many more ‘family pictures’ in the future. My dearest friend Anke, I cherish our long lasting friendship and the many good conversations we have had. Iris and Elsemiek, the work is finally done, time to go outside together this summer!

Concerning the topic of very close intergenerational proximity: Jan and Sieni, living within one kilometre distance definitely contributes to the well-being of us all! Thank you so much for being such supportive parents-in-law.

Papa, Mama and Katrijn, you have always supported me in the decisions I had to make, also in the process of writing this thesis. More and more I feel the importance of our bond and I now experience that when children become parents and parents become grandparents, emotional distances become significantly smaller. I truly believe that in the process of becoming older we will always support each other.

Dear Thom, we met each other on the Internet and discovered that for many years we had already been very close to each other: at the Zernike campus, both working on a PhD project. We only had to cross the street, and at that moment the grey and boring Zernike Campus immediately changed into a beautiful scenery. Our walks set the basis for our relationship and you have changed my life completely. I cannot thank you enough for the emotional and practical support you gave me while completing this work. I am very proud of us and am happy that we have pleasure in our current work.

And finally, my dearest Janne. Although you are too small to have contributed to my thesis contentwise, you were the greatest motivator to complete this thesis. From the day you were born I realized that every minute that I had to spend on this work, I could not spend with you! I am very curious how geographic distance between us will be throughout our lives! For now I am pleased with the idea that in the coming years you will stay very, very close to me.

Marieke
Groningen, March 2016